Het Huis Happaert

Het Huis Happaert offers meeting planners a historic venue in the centre of Antwerp, with a range of spaces for meetings, presentations and dinners. The house on Happaertstraat was built around 1520 for Jan Happaert, a knight and mayor. Professors, prominent citizens and artists were among its later residents. Today, it hosts corporate gatherings that combine group discussions with smaller breakout sessions.

The layout lends itself to a varied programme. The central hall, with its fireplace, accommodates up to sixty people for presentations and can also serve as a dining room. The piano room, featuring an antique pianoforte, provides another setting for meetings or training sessions. Smaller groups of up to twenty can use the garden room, which overlooks the courtyard garden. The garden itself can host lunches and receptions. The reception rooms offer additional space for separate meetings or conversations between sessions. Wi-Fi, audiovisual equipment and a sound system are available.

Het Huis Happaert can also be hired for private dining. This allows planners to follow a meeting or team gathering with dinner for colleagues, clients or business contacts, all at the same venue. Bespoke catering can be arranged through the house's partners on request. The team can also suggest additional activities or a guest speaker. Together, these options allow you to combine business sessions, hospitality and dining in a single programme, in a house with a distinctly Antwerp character.

Villa Licata

Villa Licata in Bolderberg is Licata Vini's hospitality venue. The family business has been bringing Italian wines to Belgium since 1979. The villa is designed for private events, business gatherings and bespoke dinners. It features a wine wall spanning two floors, a tasting room and a cellar stocked with a selection of fine Italian wines. Private dining at Villa Licata starts with a conversation about your wishes. A chef then creates a menu tailored to you. Villa Licata can recommend a chef, or you can bring in a chef of your choice. Wines from the Licata Vini collection are selected to complement the menu, and the villa has the facilities needed to host your dinner. You can dine here with friends or family, or entertain clients and colleagues. If you would like to combine dinner with business, you can hold a boardroom meeting at the villa. Villa Licata also offers wine tastings and bespoke events.

Misera

Chef Nicolas Misera welcomes groups of eight to twenty for private dining at his home in the Vlaeykensgang. This historic alleyway in the centre of Antwerp offers a distinctive setting for dinner with family, friends or business associates.

This private dining option accommodates larger parties than Restaurant Misera, where group bookings are limited to nine guests. In the Vlaeykensgang, larger groups can dine together outside the usual restaurant setting. Nicolas Misera hosts groups at weekends and when the restaurant is closed.

Misera is known in Antwerp for his restaurant, where fish and shellfish take centre stage on a seasonal menu. The restaurant has been awarded a Michelin star. For his private dining guests, the chef offers a different experience: dinner at his own home, right in the heart of the city.

Salon Anna at Maison Colette

At Maison Colette in Westerlo, Salon Anna offers a private setting for lunch or dinner. Located in the main building, which dates from 1910, this separate room accommodates eight to twenty guests for family celebrations or business gatherings. The salon retains period features and has its own terrace.

The salon is named after Anna Holemans, the great-grandmother of chef Thijs Vervloet. She worked for many years as chef to the princely De Merode family. Maison Colette also takes its name from a family member: Thijs's grandmother, Colette Leemans, who taught him to cook from an early age.

At Maison Colette, Thijs Vervloet's cooking is rooted in French tradition, with an emphasis on quality ingredients, refined flavours and carefully prepared sauces. Salon Anna can be booked directly by email for groups of eight or more, allowing you to discuss availability and the arrangements for your lunch or dinner. The restaurant also has private parking, an accessible entrance and electric vehicle charging.
